TELEVISION PRODUCTION SERVICES

Responsibilities

Television Production Services provides digital and video production services in support of the missions of the Health Science Center for administration, faculty, staff and students. The role of Television Production Services is to:

- Provide services in the development, design, production and duplication of instructional, informational, and promotional video and multimedia programs.
- Contribute to and be knowledgeable in current digital and video technology in order to serve as an information resource.
- Work with administration, faculty, staff, and students to assess current and future needs for digital and video production services and develop plans to meet those needs.
